Kia ora

We welcome Hazel, Miryn and Oaklan who have started school in Whakarewa.

Thank you to parents who attended learning conferences over the last two weeks. These face to face meetings are highly valued as we celebrate your child's learning with you.

I would like to thank students, parents and teachers for your efforts this term. It has been a most unusual time and we have all had to adapt to new ways of being. I do hope the holidays offer you an opportunity to enjoy some family time and to re-energise for the remainder of the year.

Why learn about ethics?

Our whole school inquiry is centred around the three key concepts change, perspective and ethics. Providing our students with opportunities to grapple with ethical issues helps them to think beyond the surface and to consider the wider implications of their decisions. The report '2020 Global Human Capital Trends' produced by Deloitte, highlights ethical considerations as essential for leading the workplace of the future. It suggests we need to learn to ask not only "could we" but also "how should we"? This is particularly true where technology changes the way people work.

The report suggests that...

"Seventy-five percent of organizations say ethics related to the future of work are important or very important for their success over the next 12 to 18 months, but only 14 percent say they are very ready to address this trend."

So, by teaching our students to grapple with ethical issues we hope to provide them with the skills to think about the variety of perspectives and implications of decisions in a way that is caring and fair.

According to Bruce Weinstein, the five basic principles of ethics are:

1. Do no harm
2. Make things better
3. Respect others
4. Be fair
5. Be loving

These are very easy principles for us all to work with when making decisions that affect people and a great tool for our children to understand for their future.

Message from Miss Happi

I live with a teacher who works at St. Mary's in town on Manchester St. St. Mary's school is organising a clothes swap for students on the 29th of July. A clothes swap is where students bring in good condition clothing that they no longer need and can take some clothing that is new to them.

Clarkville sees this as a great opportunity to donate to families in need. If you have any children's clothing that you would like to donate, please bring them into Matawara in Week 1 of Term 2.

Engage in Enviro

We have received the following news from the Waimakariri District Council and the Transfer station in regards to recycling.

“There are changes to recycling. The bin contamination we are finding is of real concern Recycling bin audits are happening across the district.”

The only plastics that can now be recycled are the following grades, the number in the chasing arrows triangle.

Look for the number please
